

Not long ago a group of Poles from the All-Polish group, issued a political death certificate for my brother and ten other mayors of Polish cities. The matter was swept under the rug, that it was just a tiny bit of hate, a happening perhaps. I don't care. One can expect many things in life but I didn't expect to pick up my brother's actual death certificate last Tuesday. I would like to thank everyone who was with us during these moments.

Paweł would think long-term. In this case long-term thinking refers to this year, an important and symbolic year. What I mean is that this is the year of the 30th anniversary of the elections of 4 June 1989, and that this year is also an election year. Paweł planned to be civically active.

I would like to thank you for your active citizenship in recent days and call for your active citizenship this important year.
